1. You can do a quick search using the article title.

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost interface for the Academic Search Complete database. The top navigation bar includes "New Search", "Publications", "Subject Terms", "Cited References", and "More". The main header displays the EBSCOhost logo and the database name. Below this, there are links for "Previous Record" and "Next Record". A yellow box highlights the "Search within this publication" link. Below the link, the text reads "Publication Details For 'Educational Research Quarterly'".

The screenshot shows the EBSCOhost search interface. The search bar contains the text "Flipped @ SBU". The search field is set to "TI Title". There are "Search" and "Clear" buttons. Below the search bar, there are two rows of "AND" search options, each with a "Select a Field (optional)" dropdown menu. There are also "+" and "-" buttons for adding or removing search criteria.

2. Or, you can browse through a list of issues.

The screenshot shows a list of issues for the journal "Educational Research Quarterly". The list is titled "All Issues" and includes the following items:

Because the library subscribes to Educational Research Quarterly in four databases, you can also locate the article in Education Full Text \(H.W. Wilson\) 12/01/1997 – present, OmniFile Full Text Mega \(H.W. Wilson\) 12/01/1997 – present or Professional Development Collection 03/01/2001 – present.

Some articles will be available in PDF format...

Or HTML full text.

Though the text is the same, keep in mind that the PDF format is easier to read.

When printing PDFs, make sure to use the print icon not the Print selection from the File Menu. This ensures the entire document will be printed.
